the Second Vatican Council

what happened?

by Arthur Goh

Intended for clergy, religious, and Church workers in full-time or part-time ministry to reacquaint with the Council as a historical event. Vatican II is more than merely a set of sixteen documents. We affirm that the Church is a sacrament of God, and its very history is the means through which God communicates divine help to the world.

These sessions will trace the events leading up the Council, and the happenings within its four-session duration. They will also deal briefly with the content of selected documents, taking into account which line of ministry the audience represent.

By rediscovering and acknowledging the whole Council: its teaching, its context, its dynamic, and even its ambiguities, we can discern better how God revealed the developmental path for the Church of the new millennium. This discernment will decisively affect the way we interpret the Council and its vision for our ministerial work today.
